Here it is a pm on Wednesday night, and I [REDACTED] [REDACTED] the guy who has that RTV that so loud, and he blaers music, so loud that I can hear them from the other end of my property. And so it's eight o'clock at night. And I [REDACTED] him. And it seems to be like. He went down to city road. Hopefully I'll have footage of him. And it's a black RTV a TV with blue roll bars on the roll cage is like a, it's like electric blue or blue. And, yeah, here it is a pm everyone's kind of settling down get dark and the kids out. Turn up the road on our TV. And, you know, those things are not street [REDACTED] they don't need to be on the street they don't have any place on the street, and that kid boy that kid blaers his music and dress it thing like it's a sports car, and races down these roads. You know I didn't, I didn't sign up to live on the edge of a Raceway. I didn't sign up to live besides a drag strip. But that's how it feels. Because you have a bunch of people out here that don't honor, any of the traffic codes. They fly nine miles an hour through here, they have these huge engines that are loud, and they intentionally make them as loud as possible. And especially with that guy his engine is so loud. I can hear it over my television inside my house. And I can hear his music from the other end of my property, which is over 600 [REDACTED] away. So that's louder than anyone's music needs to be in any motor vehicle. And it's [REDACTED] uncalled for. And we have a guy out here, who is who. Tax out his engine, every time he turns on the [REDACTED] and his the engine in his truck is so loud. I can hear it inside my house. above my stereo system. And we can hear it above the television in the middle of the night. And there's there's no call to that there's no need for that. That is excessively loud. And there's no way he's, I mean there's no way he's taking out his engine and obeying the speed limit, and there's no way like he's on the highway and he is literally drag racing.
